

■ Project Profile:
Barn Conversion
Kingshill, Worcestershire

Architects

- The practice was approached by a private client wishing to convert a range of derelict barns. New green oak framing was used internally to help stabilise the existing brick structure.

The barns were turned into a new family dwelling and proved that it was still possible to create yourself a new home in the country from the remains of our agricultural heritage.

Client's Comments:

"We were extremely pleased with the service and professionalism throughout the course of the development and the end result has met and in many areas exceeded our expectations"

