

■ Project Profile:
Private Homes: Little Dewchurch, Herefordshire

Architects

- A development of 10 individual four and five bedroom houses in a village location in rural Herefordshire but within easy reach of the City of Hereford itself and the important market town of Ross-on-Wye.

Accessed by two informal shared use surfaces off a focal village green area, which provided a visual amenity for the village, the development avoids domination by the vehicular environment .

Through negotiations with the Highway Authority the project facilitated a significant improvement to the nearby road junction to the benefit of all.

The house designs followed a common architectural language to lend coherence to the development, whilst retaining individuality. Whilst the brief called for significantly sized accommodation composite forms were developed to break the scale down to suit the village location.
